- Hello, is that Ryan Thomas?
- Yes, it is. Who am I speaking with?
- Julie Morrison, NSW media. It's about tomorrow's meeting.
- Right. What can I do for you, Julie?
- I want to look at the publicity photos for the new sitcom before we meet. Can you e-mail them to me?
- There's a problem there, Julie. The TV company won't release any pictures. I can't e-mail them.
- Oh, OK.
- But you could view them on our website. I can put them up in a secure area for you, and you can access them with a password.
- That's great. Will I be able to download them?
- No, you won't be able to download them. But you can take a look.
- Fine. What's the address?
- <http://www.wwe.com>. (“.” = dot, “:” = colon, “/” = forward slash)
- www.wwe.com?
- No. www.wwe.com.
- Got it.
- Then go to “Clients Only” on the menu and choose “Search”. Key in “NSW media”. You'll be asked for a password. Just key in the password and you'll go right to the pictures.
- What's the password? You tell me. Anything you want.
- Erm. Julie M?
- Julie space M, Julie dot M or one word?
- Julie space M.
- That's fine. I'll upload the files right now. You can access them in about ten minutes.
- Thanks Ryan. See you tomorrow.
- I look forward to it.
